

ICTC Bright Spot on the Oklahoma horizon

Indian Capital Technology Center
Tahlequah

Muskogee Sallisaw Stilwell

Tahlequah, OK - Tori Hicks (left), and Samantha Scott (right), winners of the National Health Occupations Students of America (HOSA) Community Service Award, will present their winning HOSA project, Medical Reserve Corps (MRC), to the National HOSA State Officers and State Advisors in Washington, D.C. in September. The MRC is a community-based volunteer organization for taking action if some kind of major disaster were to take place. The Tahlequah High School juniors are enrolled in the Health Science Technology program on Indian Capital Technology Center's Tahlequah Campus. Vicki Cone (center), their instructor and HOSA advisor will accompany them. Hicks and Scott will also present a plaque on behalf of HOSA to the national director of MRC during their visit to the nation's Capitol.