

Tom Stiles Selected “District Superintendent of the Year”

Tom Stiles, Superintendent of Indian Capital Technology Center, was selected “District Superintendent of the Year” from Oklahoma Association of School Administration (OASA), District #20, by his peers. He will be recognized at the OASA Recognition Banquet at the Cooperative Council for Oklahoma School Administration (CCOSA) Summer Conference in Oklahoma City. In addition, his selection as District Superintendent of the Year makes him eligible for the Oklahoma State Superintendent of the Year competition.

Mr. Tom Stiles assumed the position of Superintendent of Indian Capital Technology Center on July 1, 2005. Formerly, he was Superintendent of Fort Gibson Public Schools. His career in education includes serving as Superintendent of Mannford and Chelsea Public Schools, Director of School Plant Operations for Broken Arrow Schools, Director of Transportation and Support Services for Owasso Public Schools, and Vocational Agriculture Instructor for Sand Springs Public Schools. He has also served as an OSU Extension Agent.

He earned his Master’s and Bachelor’s Degrees from Oklahoma State University and also holds superintendent and vocational superintendent certificates.

He has continually maintained membership and affiliations with numerous professional organizations during his career and has been recognized for his performance and interests in education excellence. He and his wife, Sandy, have three children and eight grandchildren.
